world would see 1,000 clubs formed within 30 years, a feat which would be accomplished in 1930. After the national and international associations were formed, Rotary clubs increased at a tremendous rate. By 1912 there were 1,000 members and 50 clubs, and today there are 800 clubs with a total membership in excess of 65,000.

A feature of the meetings of the Rotarians has been the high percentage of attendance maintained, being on the average from 70 to 80 percent and one club on the Pacific coast had 100 per cent attendance for seven consecutive meetings. Every one of the 800 clubs, organized after most careful investigation, is a going organization and not a mere paper club.

In addition to the 800 clubs in the United States, Canada, England, Scotland and Ireland, and including the clubs in the United States, there are being organized in every country in the world. The slogan of the club was suggested by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, a member of the Chicago club, "He Profits Most Who Serves Best."

Following the custom established by the club of the United States, the club in Chicago, the Rotarians have made it a rule to allow only one member from one business or profession and the distinctive value of the first fundamental idea has been thoroughly proved.

WOMAN OVER 50 IN HEART BALM SUIT

Cries "Fiance," 62, for $2,000
Breach of Promise—Settled
Out of Court.

A $2,000 heart balm suit in which each of the two parties is more than 50 years old, and a divorce action in which the postmaster of the village of Brownstown was the defendant, were settled in Monroe this week. The breach of promise suit was settled out of court, and the divorce action was settled out of court.

The breach of promise suit was started by Elizabeth Kufner, 68, against Abraham Kufner, 62, on the grounds that Kufner had lashed attention on her, had asked her to marry him and had been accepted. Later he changed his mind. It was said. Just as the action was about to come to trial a settlement was effected behind closed doors.

Kufner is said to be in charge of a cheese factory in Hanover, although his home is in Danington. The plaintiff has lived in Janesville. J. L. Sherrin and E. T. Conley represented the defendant in the case.

Postmaster Not Citizen
The divorce suit was brought by Floya Helland against her husband, Postmaster Sigurd Helland, Brownstown. During the trial of the case it is said to have been brought out that Helland, while a postmaster, is not a fully naturalized citizen of this country.

The grounds for the divorce were cruel and inhuman treatment, the plaintiff, a mere wife of a woman, alleging that she was obliged to cook all the meals, carry wood and water, and in addition work all day in the postoffice, many times juggling 75 and 100 pound mail sacks. The divorce was granted without contest.

The criminal action of the state vs. Andrew Laubaugh, for illegal sale of liquor, was dismissed, as was the case of Henry Wenger vs. William Kuby and Joseph Woyas.

M. O. Moulas has been in Monroe all week assisting Mr. McGrath with his cases.

Lincoln the Greater.
Abraham Lincoln was declared a greater man than Washington at the Triangular club Thursday night. The debating question was that Washington was a greater man than Lincoln. The affirmative was upheld by Sven Sorenson and Clifford Conroy and the negative by Albert Meek and Lawrence Fitchett. Judges were Jack Barilasse, Ross Van Gelder and Allan Raggler.

The city educational system will be without an active head for one week. Superintendent Frank Holt left Friday morning for Atlantic City, N. J. Mr. Holt left Friday morning for the east, accompanied by his brother, Supt. Fred Holt, Edgerton and Principal George Bassford.

MOOT COURT HELD.
William Samaan was fined $500 in circuit court at the high school Thursday night when pupils in the civic classes under the direction of Miss Hannah Morris staged a mock trial. Robert Bolles was the attorney for the defendant and James Meyers prosecuted the case and Donald Smith was circuit court judge. The district attorney asked for the maximum sentence on a charge of grand larceny.

POSTPONE CLASS TRIP.
The civic class of the high school was to go to New York Friday to visit the legislature in session and other buildings of interest. Owing to the fact that only 25 pupils identified a desire to go, the trip has been postponed.

PANTALON BURGLAR

ROBS JOHNSON HOME
Racine, Wis., Feb. 25.—The "pantaloon burglar" visited Racine again last night after an absence of several months and entering the home of E. J. Johnson, president of the S. C. Johnson company, rifled his victim's trousers while he slept, and then entered the room of Mr. Johnson, making away with $500 worth of jewelry. The latter consisted of a platinum watch studded with diamonds and sapphires valued at $2,000, and a diamond studded platinum bar pin valued at $1,000.

A cook and waiter, asleep in Mrs. Johnson's room, failed to give any alarm until after the intruder had safely departed.

How the New McCall Printed Pattern Will Help You

YOU'VE often said to yourself, "I believe I could make a Dress like that—I know I could! And it would mean two for the price of one!" For if it's ever a temptation to have all kinds of dainty Dresses, it's in the Spring and Summer!

Now, we're going to suggest that you try making one of the clever, little Wash Dresses that you've admired—of Gingham or Dotted Swiss, or the Voiles, that are prettier this season than ever. Take your courage in your hands, You-Who-Want-To-Sew, you'll find it surprisingly easy to succeed with a smart little frock.

For the pattern itself is like a book of instructions—with directions printed on each part.

That's the advantage! The old kind of Patterns had confusing circles and perforations that kept many people from sewing, because they couldn't understand it. The New McCall Pattern is so clear that a child could put it together. It makes sewing very much easier!

From the public's standpoint, declarations were made that positive bargains were found upon the counters Thursday. The number of people brought out sections of the Gazette was a surprise. It is said.

FAIRS WILL SEEK AID FROM STATE

State aid for fairs will be sought by the Association of Wisconsin fairs following the annual convention held at Madison Thursday. This matter was referred to a special committee. Charles S. Putnam, this city, attended.

Commenting upon this phase of the fair work, Governor Blaine, delivering the address of welcome, remarked that "everybody wants money and there is no place to get it." The governor praised the fairs as boosting the state's basic industry, agriculture.

C. S. Van Auker, La Crosse, was named president. Other officers selected were Samuel Mitchell, Elkhorn, vice president; A. W. Pohn, Wausau, secretary; and Arthur Taylor, Rhineland, treasurer.

The next convention was awarded to Fond du Lac.

Addresses were made by Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state; M. M. Parkin, Madison, retiring president of the organization; and Oliver E. Remey, Milwaukee, retiring secretary.

BACK FROM SOUTH

Lloyd I. Craig, Samson salesman, is home from a six-month business trip in Texas and New Mexico.

League Considers

Disarmament Plans
Paris, Feb. 25.—The resolutions of the Geneva assembly of the league of nations regarding disarmament were taken up by the council of the league. Further action of the league on the American note on mandates has been postponed, pending receipt of instructions by the members of the council from their respective governments. There has been some discussion of the whole question raised by the United States in claiming equal concern and interests with the other principal allied and associated powers in the disposition of Germany's overseas possessions must go to the supreme council, the league's council feeling unable to take decisive action. It is said without approval by the heads of the various governments represented.

Madison—Eyes of the state dairy men have been turned to George D. Sassman's farm, Black Creek, Outagamie county, where some record tests were made among cows of his Holstein herd by Howard J. Martin of the Wisconsin Experiment station. Mr. Sassman now holds the second place in the county for milk and butterfat production. Pauline Henger-vold Julp, a five-year-old, produced 699.1 pounds of milk in a seven day test and an average of 25.99 pounds of butterfat. Her best day's milk record was 102.8. Her record is exceeded only by a cow owned by Fred Haxman of Appleton.

NEARING THE END OF THE RUM ROAD.

It would seem that the end of the road of rum had almost been reached when the friends of crime and disorder and poison death and illicit whiskey dealing and a desire to again foist the reign of beer on the state, were signally defeated at all points on the battle line in the assembly on Thursday. The Matheson bill with the amendments offered by Mr. Matheson himself and the friendly amendment by Representative Hanson, seems to be beyond the hope of defeat in the popular branch of the legislature. There will be other efforts to defeat the bill but it is believed that it will not succeed. The men who made the Mulberger law were actuated by motives far foreign to a mere enforcement of the 13th amendment. They hoped it would permit a higher alcoholic content than that permitted by the Federal enforcement act. It has now come back to curse them and with the added amendments will be sufficient to make it hard for the criminal bootlegger to get away with the support and connivance of "our best people."

Upon the peace officers of the county, the district attorney and the sheriff and others will come the burden of seeing that the illicit traffic is stopped. With a few judges like Langels and Gelfer sentencing men who have flaunted law violation in the faces of the public, to terms in houses of correction and penitentiaries, with stiff fines, as in the case of McKelvey and Budar, there will be a little holy fear of law instilled into some of the calloused and criminal souls.

A CHILD ADVENTURE.

A little child with wandering and uncertain footsteps seeking to explore an uncharted world filled with strange and curious things, goes traveling. Later the child is found just over the line of the Great Crossing, its tiny foot not firmly on the highway to Life's Greatest Adventure—Death. And the heart of the old physician. One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. The human mass responds to a sorrow that might be that of any home. In all literature nothing is more poignantly sad. Memory turns to a long-ago road book and the Reveries of a Bachelor is taken from the shelves. You turn to the story of Little Paul. In spite of its pathos and its grief it helps soften the blow.

But at dinner-time, Paul does not come back. "Paul ought to be in bed so far," I say. "The mother says nothing; but there is a look of anxiety upon her face that disturbs me. Jamie wonders where Paul can be, and he saves for him whatever he knows Paul will like—headache, cold, toothache, but the mother-hour passes, and Paul does not come. Old Troy lies in the sunshine on the porch. Now the mother is indeed anxious. And I, though I console her, feel her my fears strangely. Something like instinct guides me to the meadow. I wander down the brookside, calling—Paul! Paul! But there is no answer. All the afternoon we search, and the neighbors search; but it is a fruitless toil. There is no joy in this evening; the mother passes in silence; only little Carrie, with tears in her eyes, asks if Paul will soon come back? All the night we search and call; the mother, even braving the night-air, runs here and there, until the morning finds us sad and despondent. That day—the next—cleared up the mystery; but cleared it up with darkness. Poor little Paul, he has sunk under the murderous eddies of the brook! His boyish mate, his playmate, his brother, his best friend, is lost to us forever! I will not tell how, nor when we found him; nor will I tell of our desolate home, and of her grief—the first crushing grief of her life. Weeks roll on; and a smile of resignation lights up the saddened features of the mother. Those dark mourning-veils speak to the heart deeper and more tenderly than ever the bride costume. She lightens the night of her grief by her sweet, cordial of resignation. "Paul," she says, "God has taken our boy!"

AUSTRIA AND GERMANY.

Some 400,000 children are being fed in Vienna and other cities of Austria by Americans; there the condition is far different from that in Germany. Austria, the great pawn in the game of war, Germany's most powerful ally, comes nearer being ruined by war than any other nation involved, save perhaps Russia. But there is one phase of life in Vienna with all its starvation that we Americans at this distance fail to understand. We are told that the night life of the great Austrian city never was more bright, that balls costing fabulous sums, are given, that there are gay parties, extravagance in food and dress, vulgar display of jewels and rich apparel, wine in streams, are characteristic scenes at the theaters and restaurants. A few blocks away, says the cable story of this orgy of wealth, are hundreds dying and fondling. "The temperament of the people must be considered," the Americans who question and protest, are told. So we in America, still unbruted by war and still believing in some Higher Law for human conduct, go on and save the starving, while Vienna dances and gorges itself into drunken stupor and moral decay. It is a pity that there cannot be confiscation of the property of the spenders for the good of the many.

The plan to make Uncle Sam take German reparations bonds in payment of Belgium's debt to America looks like one of those schemes to finance a nonpartisan league bank.

The Townley piffle and fatuous speech that built up a realm based on bubbles has lost its potency except in the Wisconsin legislature where the bill following the North Dakota program of state ownership, providing for a constitutional

Women in League

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

New York City, Feb. 25.—There still exists today a popular superstition that women are traitors to their own sex, that they fight a pretty, guerrilla warfare among themselves, and that when a woman is down and out it is invariably a man who comes nobly and disinterestedly to her rescue.

This may be true in some places, especially in the masculine mind, but it isn't so in New York. Here "Women for Women" is a popular slogan in the business and industrial worlds, and the city is filled with feminine clubs and societies whose sole object is the assistance or promotion of their own sex.

One of the most interesting of these is an organization of working girls, known as the Girls Service League, which is dedicated to the aid and protection of this group who work. Every girl in its membership list is constantly on the lookout for signs of distress or unhappiness among her friends and acquaintances. When Laura, the landlady's daughter, suddenly falls into deep depression, or when Katie comes to the factory with eyes red from weeping, the G. S. L. member does not remain an innocent bystander. Usually, she puts a kind arm around Laura or Katie, and comes on up to the club and sits over with our Secretary.

The league has two club-houses in different sections of the city, each possessing a free dormitory of some 12 or 15 beds, and an employment agency. Girls who are stranded in New York are welcome to the clubs' hospitality at any time of the day or night. Girls rescued from various dangers and delinquencies by social workers of the New York Probation and Protection Association are also taken in at the club-house. Those who need medical care are sent to a hospital or clinic; those who are out of work are found jobs through the club employment agencies, and others, whose condition demands it, are sent to a convalescent home in the country.

The league's club-houses are large and cheerful, with book-cases full of good books; a piano and Victrola, and many games, including parcheesi and checkers. The girls are privileged to entertain their young men friends here on several nights a week, while every Saturday night a social is given. I sat down on a bench in the park, and saw a mother and daughter, and a young man and woman, who were working on their way to the club-house, and who were talking over the conditions of the club-house as well as the girls are often invited.

The objects of the League, as set forth in its constitution, are as follows: To protect girls from moral danger. To promote moral education. To encourage right thinking and clean conversation. To improve conditions of girls. To stimulate girls in the possibilities of life.

Every member is pledged to befriend lonely girls in the city and those who are living apart from their families, and to report girls in need of help; or bad conditions in places where they live or work, or find their recreation. She is also required to study the laws relating to health, labor, recreation and protection, and to report violations of these laws. Girls are also encouraged to make suggestions for improving these laws or for securing better enforcement of them.

And to all these things the growing membership list of the League subscribes most earnestly, as a few recent instances will indicate. There is the case of Alveta, who even now is being supported by the club. Alveta was one of a family of 10 children who were very much resented by their step-father. The little Long Island cabin where the family lived was most inadequate, so that on the day that Alveta became 16 she left and came to New York. Here she secured a job in a factory and a tiny room in a miserable boarding house. Although she lived but scantily, her wages could not be made to stretch over the entire week. Always, there was one night when she had to go without dinner.

On one of these impoverished evenings, as she was coming home from work, she met another roomer in the house, a Spaniard. The man took the lean pocketbook out of the hand, and opened it. "Only three pennies," he said. "This must be the night you do not dine—unless you go to dinner with me."

Alveta went. So much Alveta confided to the club director herself. The rest of her story was filled in by Camilla, a young Spanish girl, who came to the club one evening and requested help for Alveta. It seemed that after a few months the Spaniard had tired of taking Alveta to dinner and had transferred her attentions to Camilla, who also lived in the rooming house. The man confided the whole affair to the girl and asked her to help him get rid of Alveta by pretending to be his lover. He also added that he was afraid trouble might come because of Alveta's extreme youth.

Camilla said nothing, but inwardly she decided that it would. A half hour later she arrived at the club in great indignation. "I have seen the girl," she told the director. "and she is very young, and therefore is stupid. The man, too, is very stupid. He thinks that I, Camilla, will help him desert this child, who is to have a baby."

Yet another member of the League saw her chance to rush to the rescue of her sex when she came across a young girl in the midst of a heated argument with a man in a corner of a subway station. Without the slightest compunction, she listened to the conversation and heard enough to convince her that the girl was in serious danger. So, approaching the couple boldly, she said to the girl if she could speak to her, a minute.

"Listen," she said, in some embarrassment, as she had never rescued anybody before. "I wouldn't go with him, if I was you. You can't trust these New York guys. If you ain't got any place to go, you can come to our club. It's all right. You can look it up in the telephone book."

"But how will I get rid of him?" asked the girl nervously.

"Oh, just leave that to me," said the G. S. L. member. "Say," she exclaimed, walking up to the waiting man, "beat it. This girl's a friend of mine, and I'll tell her father if you don't beat it—quick!"

At the club, the rescued damsel, whose name was Grace, told the director that she was 13 years old, that she had met the man for the first time that evening, that he had taken her to a cheap restaurant, and then had asked her to go to a dance hall with him. But when they reached a dance hall, she said, she was not 13 years old, as she had claimed, but only 14. Thus, from the foregoing it may be seen that women are not as indifferent to the welfare of their sex as is commonly supposed. As gallantry declines among men, it apparently rises among women. For the ideals of these girls are the ideals of the medieval knight—to succor weakness, and especially the damsel in distress.

amendment to permit the state to invest in warehouses and elevators, was defeated in a tie vote, 35 to 45.

Mr. Gompers seems to have arrived at the idea that he is bigger than the United States.

THE FUTURE.

In spite of the burdens that fill up the day, in spite of the care and the sorrow, Life is full of the lure of a yonder way And bid us to live for tomorrow: There is always the promise of gladness to be, And the spring when the blossoms shall come to the tree.

In spite of the trials and fear and despair, In spite of the storm and the rain, The future holds many a day that is fair And many a joy we shall gain: Beyond the gray clouds which at times hover low, There are sunshine and beauty which we shall know.

Oh, the road may be long and the goal far away, And useless the struggle may seem, But in spite of the gloom and the fear of the day, Still clinging to the promise of dawn, Still clinging to the faith and go swinging along, Some tomorrow shall bring you to laughter and song.

Always the future is tinted with rose And the blossoms return to the tree; So shall day bring all our care to a close, For many a glad day there shall be: We shall pass through the winter of sorrow and To the glorious springtime and summer of life.

CONFESSIONS OF A CYNIC.

I never make up my mind about a public proposition until I hear what Henry Ford thinks about it.

I never saw a man's wig that looked like real hair.

I don't think I am getting more than I earn. If I did, I wouldn't be getting it.

I have given up the habit of knocking people I don't like. It took me years to find out that it didn't do any good.

I don't much admire a man who regularly washes the dishes, and I don't know any woman who admires one either.

I have seen the clothes of the smart set for years and am still satisfied not to belong to it.

I have worn soft collars for years, but have never been able to explain any good reason for them.

I have never yet received a good assortment of lines from the laundry. Either the bundle is all shirts, all collars or all handkerchiefs.

I never eat eggs. When they are expensive I can't afford them and when they are cheap I don't care for them.

Out in Kansas they have a plan to make all bachelors identify themselves by wearing red neckties. But that seems a serious and possible idea. I don't think I can do it.

George Washington didn't lie, but then in those days there wasn't so much to lie about as there is now.

It is a very dull day in the life of a cigar clerk in New York if he is not knocked down and robbed at least once.

Sometimes we feel sorry for New York on account of the great number of reformers who go to that city every year to save it from perdition, but not sorry enough to offer to take any of them off the big town's hands—Kansas City "Star."

Father went to bed feeling well, and the next morning woke up dead. —Health Culture Magazine.

"My wife can make money go farther than I can," confessed an Eldorado business man. "Her father sent her $200 for a new washing machine, and bought with it an electric washing machine, an electric sweeper and a dishwasher and a davenport—on the installment plan."

Who's Who Today

SIR LAMING WORTHINGTON-EVANS.

Great Britain's new Secretary of War, the Right Hon. Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, is the least military looking man that has been in that office, and if he does not shine in any way as a warrior he is at any rate a wizard where figures are concerned. He is very tall and thin, with a head as bald as a billiard ball, and a voice, but an even, pleasant tone. He belongs by training to the same branch of the legal profession as Lord Balfour, and he is a solicitor, and managed to acquire a fortune in the city by the time he was forty through his astuteness as a corporation lawyer.

It is said that the real reason of Sir Laming Worthington-Evans' appointment to the secretaryship of war is the fact that he is a member of the premier's private staff, and is a very serious out in the enormous war expenditure while retaining the maximum of efficiency. Winston Spencer Churchill, who held the office since the beginning of 1912, was carried away by the military enthusiasm of the premier, and the conviction that where great international interests were at stake money was not a consideration, and the necessity of securing the funds needed for his military operations from the house of commons.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

THE CONSTIPATION HABIT

The first dose of castor oil or other physic given to the baby is a tremendously important matter. It calls for the judgment of the physician. Parents are sadly remiss when they permit anyone else to decide this question. A baby is a delicate bit of machinery—that is, very finely adjusted, and one perfectly co-ordinated like a fine watch. Needless attempts to regulate a watch with a hammer or a monkey wrench are scarcely deemed advisable. The second and third doses of castor oil or other physic are even more injurious than the first. The first dose is, in rare cases, perhaps a necessary evil, but an evil nevertheless. The second and third doses tend to establish or increase the inco-ordination brought about by the first and then set up a state of dependence on artificial stimulants to peristalsis or bowel movement. From this unwise or ill-advised resort to physics in the early days or weeks of life, the constipation habit is commonly established, and the child's system is taken to become more or less fixed as the years pass.

Another factor of the constipation habit is inadequate feeding. Infants, after one reason or another, are fed on artificial feeding. This makes a habit of the baby's age and condition, and meeting with discouragements, she readily listens to suggestions of advisers who are really not qualified to determine the food of infants of a growing child, and thus the baby is cheated with some delicate food which may be very convenient to prepare and directly digestible, but which nevertheless, cheats the baby out of vitally necessary elements such as fat or vitamins (growth-promoting factors). A food preparation lacking a fair proportion of fat (a proportion akin to 10 per cent in the food supplied by Nature) is bound to favor the constipation habit; moreover, such foods if relied upon as the sole nourishment of the infant, will, in a few months, promote scurvy and rickets.

Our little boy is recovering from scarlet fever. Some of the neighbors tell us it was a very severe case, and I am sure that some of the heart or kidneys. Is there anything I can do to prevent that? (ANSWER)—The neighbors, as usual, misinformed you. Just follow your doctor's directions and no doubt the child will make a complete recovery.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed queries pertaining to health. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed with address Dr. Wm. Brady, Gazette.

Q. Is it true that if wheat is planted in a cold, wet and clammy soil it will degenerate into chaff? E. S. C.

According to a scientist of the New York state college of agriculture: "Probably the first settler who planted a wheat field in America sowed some seeds of chaff with it, and the practice still continues. Some farmers believed that wheat changed into chaff as it grew, but it is needless to say that such a miracle never happened. The wheat plants are all over easily related, but belong to quite different tribes in the grass family, and each comes true from its own seed."

LEADERS NAMED FOR CONVENTION

Plans are already being made for the entertainment of the scores of members of the Wisconsin Music Teachers' Association who will attend the annual convention here May 2, 3 and 4.

The convention will probably be held in one of the largest churches, although it has not been definitely decided upon. Chairmen of the committees appointed are: Membership, Miss Ada Pond; publicity, Supt. Frank Holt; finance, Lucian Holman; banquet, Mrs. John G. Rexford; and refreshments, Mrs. J. L. Wilcox.

La Crosse Man Heads Association of Fairs

Madison, Wis., Feb. 25.—C. S. Van Aulen, La Crosse, was elected president of the Association of Wisconsin Fairs to succeed M. M. Parkinson, Madison, at the annual meeting here Thursday. Van Aulen was selected as the next meeting place. The other officers elected were: S. Mitchell, of Elkhorn, vice-president; A. W. Prehn, of Wausau, secretary; Arthur Taylor, of Friesland, treasurer; C. W. Harte, of Watertown, was first elected as secretary, but he declared he could not serve.

The fair officials voted to recommend to the legislature that all fairs be granted state aid of 80 per cent of all premiums paid on livestock and agricultural products not to exceed $5,000 to any one fair, with the exception of the La Crosse state fair and the Northern Wisconsin state fair at Chippewa Falls.

Inhabitants of Massachusetts last year lost between $30,000,000 and $50,000,000 by investing in fake securities and get-rich-quick schemes.

FISHERMEN LOSE HEAVILY AS WIND BLOWS ICE AWAY

Marquette.—Damages estimated to be about $15,000 was done to the nets and other gear of the fishermen when the entire ice field of Green Bay was recently broken loose through the action of the wind. The entire bay as far as can be seen with glasses, was one open stretch of water, with the exception of small patches of ice. Open water was to be found to the northward toward Cedar river, and with the strong south and southwest wind, it was feared the ice would start moving at any time. Almost every fisherman in the city about 100 in normal times, suffered the loss of most of his nets, some losing everything they had prepared for the winter fishing season. It is estimated that about 2,000 or 3,000 nets were lost, most of them being herring and whitefish nets, with some pond nets among them.

$6,000 Worth of Radium In Tube Size of Needle

Bau Claire.—Dr. J. Lyman of this city has obtained radium from Pittsburgh. The shipment came in tubes in appearance of small-sized needles, and was valued at $6,000. But five other cities in the state have secured any radium at all, according to medical men here—Milwaukee, Green Bay, La Crosse, Marshfield, and Sheboygan.

FORD SERVICE

Is the same in every country in the world. The Ford Car will serve you day and night, 24 hours a day if you choose 365 days a year.

Ford durability began back in 1903 when Henry Ford started experimenting with Vanadium steel and heat-treating processes. He knew that more exact tempering of steel for motor car building must be worked out. Vanadium, it was learned, when added to molten steel, gives to that steel a greater toughness and adhesiveness. And now other alloys have been found which are superior to Vanadium. With the Ford Motor Company constant progress is the daily companion. The Ford products—Car, Truck, Tractor—grow in quality daily. Heat-treating tempers each part so that it will best withstand the wear and tear to which it is subjected. Ford chemists and analysts have created formulas and standard specifications for every individual part of the Ford Car—not only for the steel but for everything from pneumatic tires to top.

Ford durability isn't a matter of accident, it is a matter of painstaking thoroughness in laboratory and factory. The Ford is a car of precision—of standardized values. Order your Ford car now. No matter how fast they may be made the demand multiplies faster. Order today, for we can make fairly prompt deliveries—Runabout, Touring Car, Coupe, Sedan, Truck and Fordson Tractor.

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER LXXXI. HIS STORY. I doubt whether Violet slept much that night. But the next morning at 8:30 she appeared at our breakfast table. We were sitting down to breakfast when he knocked. I opened the door, and he came in, looking tired and a little haggard. He had not shaved and he evidently had not slept very well. I gave him a glass of coffee and a slice of toast from the table and into his arms. "It's all right now, isn't it?" she said, holding up her face for his kiss. "It's all right now," he answered. "But the rest of it is all wrong. Can I have breakfast with you, Aunt Edna?" "I would you may." And I went out to the little kitchen, to bring in cereal and hot milk, and more coffee. "And now don't talk till you are nearly through breakfast," I said, pouring his coffee and forgetting to eat herself in her care of him. In spite of our anxiety, that made me smile. I knew that no matter whom she married, I would make a perfect wife. She never argued, she had her way when she wanted it by coaxing—which is certainly the prettier method—and she knew that no man is entirely human until he has had one cup of morning coffee. "Now," she said, pushing aside her scarcely touched cereal, when I had finished the coffee. "I can't tell you all the details," he said, "because I have to get into the office by 9. I don't know whether there's any music to face there or not. If there is, you'll have to practice from Monday. Aunt Edna, he added, turning to me, "He has a bad case on you, and if I get into trouble, you may have to get me out."

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

"Undecided": Do not phone the boy. He would have every reason to think you were running after him. If he were very much interested in you he would find a way to see you. Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 years of age and have come from a town near here. While there I went with a young man of whom I thought a great deal. We were all going together, but since I have come here he cares very little about me. I go there twice a week and always find him "peevish," so I try to make up with him. He has only been to see me twice and because some of my friends take great pleasure in coming here, and taking me out, he gets jealous of me and he doesn't want anyone else to look at me. I surely love him and there isn't a thing I wouldn't do for him. We have been angry at each other for two weeks and have just made up. What would you do if you were in my place? LOVESTICK GIRL. I would not advise you to continue your affair with a young man who spends most of his time outing. Such a person usually develops into a husband who goes for days without talking to his wife. You are very young and should enjoy the companionship of various friends. Do not put yourself out to keep peace with the young man who is the other half of your life. He wants to be friendly, respond, but when he pouts, leave him alone. Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls friends and both go to community school. We had a very fine teacher at the first of the term and she got along fine with the class almost but she quit her school and almost broke our hearts. In her place there is a thing which never smiles or anything and she is there from "pull." The man who gives her the position comes over and gives us a talking out about every day and we want to get through the excitement.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE: Say Joe do you know that baby of ours has a wonderful natural gift? He can tell time as good as any clock on a wall and better than a good many, especially the clocks around this house, which mostly seem to be telling the time in China or some such useless place, although you keep on promising to fix them every time you come home and never do, not that I'm knocking, Joe. Anyway Joe, about the baby's gift, it's really one of the seventeen wonders of nature the way he marks off every three hours as regular as clockwork, but not clockwork, as I mentioned above. The way he does it Joe is by seeming to know that he's supposed to have his bottle every three hours rain or shine, and exactly when the three hours are up if he's asleep he wakes up and yells and if he's awake he merely yells. In fact Joe sometimes he's so prompt that he starts to yell even before the three hours are up, but he keeps on yelling until they are all the way up, thus making it absolutely accurate. Don't it give you a strange feeling Joe to think that your child is more wonderful than the most complicated cuckoo clock? It does me Joe. Do you think it's a symbol, Joe, that he'll be punctual when he grows up and always manly and on time for his engagements? If so, Joe he won't be taking after you. I'll never forgive you Joe for being late for your own wedding that time. Not that I'm knocking Joe, it takes all sorts of people to make a world and so of course it's the common fate of us women to marry some of them. I'm still trying ice skating as a reducing exercise and I'm still unconsciously at my feet a large percentage of the time while I'm skating. All I can say is, people have a right to their own manners and customs, but I don't envy the Esquimaux sitting around talking on icebergs. Your loving wife, TESSIE.

What Shall I Do?

The Marriageable Age. "Dear Mrs. Page: I am 17 years old and my sweetheart is away for a year. When he comes back we want to be married. Then I will be nearly 19. Do you think I will be too young to be married then? A Working Girl." That all depends, dear girl. Ordinarily, yes—that is, I think most girls would be. But perhaps you are very old for your age, perhaps conditions are such that marriage at that age would be better for you than is usually the case. Here's what I would do—I would try not to count on marrying at the end of the year, but just go on working and playing and enjoying your girlhood the most you can, leaving the future to take care of itself. Much can happen in a year, and many changes of opinion can come about. At the end of the year—particularly since you two are separated—you still want to marry. It will be time to consider whether you are ready to give up the freedom of youth for the responsibilities of marriage. If, then, you are absolutely sure that you love him enough and he can support you, I think I will say "Go on, dear child, and God bless you!" But before that time, be sure to write me again to see if I have changed my mind! And send a self-addressed envelope so I can write you personally. Why, Rose Lee? "Dear Mrs. Page: Not long ago a girl acquaintance of mine was visiting at my home and my friend called. He was very attracted by her and I since then has been desiring me." I am beginning to like my girl friend. What shall I do? Please answer soon.—Rose Lee." What shall you do? Remember that he didn't belong to you, and that it's a wide world with lots of friends for everybody, and that he will be attracted by lots of girls, and that you ought to have lots of boy friends, and that "desiring" is very unpleasant. Then you are to go out and have a good time. Will you please? You will be happier, and never so much nearer a girl, Rose Lee. All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

until the cheese is a rich brown. Eggless Muffins—One cup flour, one tablespoon shortening, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Makes nine muffins. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk slowly, then the melted shortening, beat rapidly until light and fluff, mix this two-thirds full. Bake in quick oven. Mock Duck—Have butcher cut a pocket in a flank steak, stuff with bread and onion dressing, roast in lard with salt, pepper and dredging with flour. Dredge pan with flour after melting drippings in it on top of stove; in addition lay a slice of bacon on some fat on top of meat. This takes about one-half to three-quarters of an hour; the potatoes can be baked at the same time, therefore using but little more gas. Carrot Pudding—One cup sugar, one cup ground nutmeg, clove and cinnamon, a little salt and one teaspoon baking soda; add one large raw carrot, one large raw potato and one-half cup suet all chopped fine, one cup raisins mixed thoroughly, and steam two and one-half hours. One cup flour can be used if desired. This makes a looser pudding without and can be reheated several times to better advantage. Serve hot with hard sauce. LENTIL LISHES Fish and Pineapple Salad—Prepare two cups of flaked, cold, boiled fish. Chop coarsely one cup of canned or fresh pineapple. Chop one cup celery and mince one red pepper fine. Mix the ingredients and sprinkle over all two tablespoons of sharp French dressing. Let stand 20 minutes, drain, fill white lettuce leaves with the salad, put a large spoonful of mayonnaise on top of each salad and garnish with olives stuffed with red peppers. Egg Bouillie—Rub three hard-boiled eggs through a fine sieve and add one-half cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon of finely grated onion, three tablespoons finely minced watercress or parsley. Mix lightly and thoroughly and then form into egg cutlets and spread with mayonnaise. Roll in grated cheese and then in finely minced parsley. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves with bacon and watercress garnish. MODISH IDEAS For tailored and street frocks, long, tight sleeves and snug shoulders are proper. Suits and coats of elaborate fabrics are featured in place of fur-trimmed models. There are new elastic bandeaux which hold without straps and which flatten the bust.

ONE YEAR AGO!

Just a year ago, the Bank of Southern Wisconsin opened its doors to the People of Janesville.

At that time, the boom period was at its peak and although we made a most auspicious start, judged in terms of patrons and deposits, it was only natural to anticipate that the depression which spread throughout the entire country a few months after we had opened for business, would retard our progress. It is gratifying to record a continued increase in deposits until today over two thousand people in Janesville and vicinity are making their financial headquarters at this bank.

Perhaps no more unfavorable period could have been selected for the opening of a new bank and the fact that we are able to celebrate our anniversary under such advantageous circumstances, is convincing proof to you, as a customer or prospective customer of this bank, that the same capable and conservative management insures continued growth and progress.

And although the success of which we may be justly proud, is credited directly to the ability of our officers, directors and employees, and to the support which is assured by our membership in the Federal Reserve System, nevertheless, we wish to express our very deep appreciation of the confidence which has been rested in the Bank of Southern Wisconsin by the community as a whole.

Because the growth of a city is measured by the growth of its business and banking institutions, the successful termination of this bank's first year in business, points the way toward that Greater Janesville to which we all look forward, and we invite you to share with us our satisfaction in being able to publish herewith our statement of condition at close of business February 21st, 1921:

U. S. DEMANDS YAP CABLE PRIVILEGE

Insists on Freedom of Communication Across Pacific Ocean.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Washington, Feb. 25.—The United States government continues its demand for cable communication across the Pacific to the Far East and insists that the important way station on the small island of Yap shall not be given to Japan by the league of nations.

The American government in its latest note, the exact text of which has not yet been made public, does not ask that the island be internationalized so that it will always be under the joint control of the great powers, Great Britain, the United States, France and Japan. United States contends, moreover, that Japan never had any right under international law to seize the trans-Pacific cable at Yap and that the status which it enjoyed before the war should be restored.

Trouble Over German Cables.
Back of the entire question of cable communication through the island of Yap is a former and even more involved controversy over the cutting of the German cables in the Atlantic. The American companies contend that both England and Japan have seized these cables and have used them for depriving the people of the United States of direct cable communication, which is so important to commercial intercourse with Germany and Central America, England and France have a reason to be sympathetic with the Japanese viewpoint rather than the American, since the legality of the seizure of cables are concerned, but England and France on the other hand, have to decide whether they too will maintain communication with their own interests in the East only by passing through Japanese territory.

Cable Official Explains.
The situation in the Pacific, which has precipitated the league of nations is best described by Clarence J. Mackay, president of the Commercial Cable and Postal Telegraph company, which owns the cable cables that are at the bottom of the controversy. He says:

"A company owned in Germany but largely supported by Dutch capital and subsidized by the German and Japanese governments, owned cables running from Guam (owned by the United States) to Yap, there diverging, one line going south to the Dutch Indies and the other going north to Shanghai."

Operate Guam End.
"We operated the Guam end of that cable under a contract with the German-Dutch company. All messages for the Dutch Indies went sent via Yap under normal conditions, and during interruptions of our cable between Guam and Manila, the Philippines and China by our route, we diverted traffic via Yap to Shanghai over this German-Dutch system. Hence these cables were vitally important in making the uninterrupted communication with China and the Philippines, and the seizure of Yap by the Japanese and the diversion of the cable into one of the Japanese islands, deprives us of this alternative route. There was only one other alternative route to China and that was via Japan."

Japan Would Get Traffic.
"If Japan continues to retain the Yap-Shanghai cable, it will mean that all traffic destined to China and the Philippines during interruptions of our Guam-Manila cable will have to go through Japan, and the volume of traffic to the Philippines would not justify the laying of such a cable, which would be practically idle most of the time. As to the interference with American cable communication applies here as to the seizure of the German-Atlantic cables. No part of these cables in the Pacific touched Japanese soil, but one end touched American territory (Guam) and yet the Japanese have seized this German-Pacific cable system to the detriment of American traffic with China and the Philippines and the advantage to their own. I strongly submit that the United States in consideration of its own position in the Pacific and its own interest in being deprived of an important alternative means of communication with China and its Pacific possessions, the Philippines Islands, which it enjoyed before the war."

Yap Otherwise Worthless.
"The island of Yap is really worthless except as a place for a cable landing because the distance across the Pacific is so great that to reach the Far East, the cables are landed first at Honolulu, then the island of Midway, then Guam, and finally Yap, where the northern end of the cable crosses the international boundary to Shanghai and the southern end crosses to the Dutch East Indies by way of the Philippines. Should Japan get control of the island of Yap, it would be a serious disadvantage to the United States for a landing of any cable except one owned by Japanese interests and could thus practically compel the sale of the north end of the present cable to the Japanese."

Key to Pacific Cables.
"Whoever gets possession of the island of Yap gets the key to trans-Pacific communication. The United States is anxious for that control itself, but merely wants to have Yap internationalized so that no nation can have an undue advantage. Indeed, the stock of the Commercial Pacific Cable company is owned partly by Danish and British interests, although, according to Mr. Mackay, the over statement of the company's hands in respect to the United States government and public as purely American in its operations as if every dollar of its stock were provided by American capital."

General Publicity Versus Applied Advertising

THERE are two kinds of advertising. One kind is called "general publicity." Sometimes it is further described in phrases like "atmosphere building," "national prestige," or appeal to "key consumers."

It is the glittering generality of thinly spread, country-wide appeal—the hit-or-miss way of trying to sell goods.

The other kind of advertising is "applied advertising."

There is nothing mysterious or indefinite about it. It is simply advertising in the columns of daily newspapers concentrated in the markets where the advertiser has a chance to sell goods.

It is definite, for it reaches all possible customers. Usually it tells them the merchant who sells the advertised goods.

Applied advertising makes sales. Its results can be weighed and measured. It either pays or it does not. It generally does pay, and if it does not, the reason why can be quickly ascertained.

Manufacturers and distributors are today turning to newspaper advertising, for these are the days of intensive selling.

They want applied advertising because this is the kind that keeps the cash register bell ringing.

Manufacturers and distributors interested in the problems of modern merchandising are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, 800 World Building, New York, for a copy of the book, "National Advertising and the Newspapers."

West is visiting her sister, near Watworth. J. J. Morgan spent Monday in Janesville. S. E. Parks returned Monday from a visit in Beloit. Mrs. Edna Louie is spending the week in Madison. Ray Heard returned Tuesday from a visit with relatives in Beloit. Chicago. The members of the O. E. S. met with Mrs. Frank Clapper Tuesday. A chicken dinner was served and all reported a royal time.

60 Salesmen at James Mfg. Company Meeting

Fort Atkinson—The salesmen's meeting of the James Manufacturing company which was held here at a recent date was an especially successful one. Sixty salesmen of the various plants situated in other cities were present and it cheerfulness is any criterion the times are not doing anything to the James industries. This is the first of a series of these meetings. A fine program was given and the new service hall in the James plant was filled to its utmost capacity with employees and guests.

Park Club.—Roy J. Wilcox was unanimously endorsed for the United States district judge at a special meeting of the Park Club held Wednesday evening. It is felt that an Eau Claire man should be chosen as the city is centrally located and the Park Club is one of the finest in the northwestern district. He served in the state senate four years ago.

LOST IN OPENING, STARS COME BACK TO WIN, 19 TO 10
(Special to Gazette.)

Milton, Feb. 25.—Accompanied by 50 rosters, the Janesville All-Stars with into college life for a second time and with success. Marked by clever shooting by Captain "Ted" Hager and Black the Bower City team shot disaster into the ranks of the Milton college seconds Thursday night on the college court, 19 to 10. Hager, with six baskets to his credit, and Black with three and a free throw, did all the scoring for the All-Stars, who jumped into the lead right after the opening of the second half and made a whirlwind finish that left the Miltonites nine points in the rear.

Stars Pick Up Speed.
The college seconds faced the first goal and were ahead during most of the first half, which ended with the score 9 to 7 in their favor. The visitors led the score shortly after the whistle blow, however, and then after the college seconds were unable to score more than one point.

One of the All-Stars was injured in the second half but was able to re-enter it 2 1/2 hours after a few minutes rest. His place was taken by Anderson, who was soaked a while on the bench and forced out of the game for a few minutes.

Saturday night, the Delavan Blue plays the Stars at the Janesville gymnasium. The Delavan outfit was victorious over Woodstock which beat the Stars 40 to 15 early in the season.

Factory League Race Exciting as End Nears

GAMES FRIDAY.
West Side.
Team—Parker Pen-A-Mor Express—1-2
Woolen Mills—Samson No. 2—3-4
East Side.
Gazette—Hanson Furniture—5-7
Machine Co.—Cadillacs—4-6

With only Friday night and next week left in the Industrial Bowling League, it will be impossible to tell until after the final game is rolled what team will stand in first place. The race has been one of the hottest in local pin circles for years.

Results of the games Friday give promise of changes. League leaders in block River Machine Co., two games ahead of the Woolen Mills, are scheduled to play the Cadillacs, sixth place holders. The position of the Gazette tells nothing for the year now representing the motor concern is a revamped outfit, going like a Twenty-first Century Limited. Changes are that the machine will need a cord of wood to keep from slipping.

Even greater interest is found in the games booked for Friday between the Woolen Mills and the Samson Tractors. The Woolen are two games ahead of the Sammites and will drop to third if the latter win three, or will enter a tie if the Tractors take two.

Parker Pen and the Hanson Furniture are tied for fourth place. Friday the Lucky Curves play the American Express, while the furniture makers are up against the Daily Gazette. Strengthening of the newspaper is the past few weeks would indicate that the Parkers have a little the better chance of busting the tie.

Here and There, but Mostly Here

By FRANK SINGLA III, Sporting Editor.

Janesville high school's close victory over Evansville at Milton Tuesday night demonstrates the success that comes in athletics when whole heart and soul is thrown into the game. Early in the season, the Blues looked so bad that the entire student body and the town was "blue" about the outlook.

Steady training, hard practice and plenty of belief that they could come across with victory, has put Coach Reynold's underdogs on the map.

Each member of the team, and every one on the second quint, has shown steady progress, but none more than Newman. Raubacher, a last year's player, became eligible and instantly competition forced "Chad" to fight guard, to keep his place. That he has been well demonstrated. "Butch" Raubacher is a better floor man and dribbler, we agree, but he has not an eye for the basket.

Blues Face Hard Struggle Against Madison, Friday

Janesville high school's hardest game upon the remaining schedule takes place at Madison Friday night when the Blues meet the University high. Still feeling the effects of the defeat here at the hands of the Capital City team, 25 to 29, the locals travel with a fighting mood well developed.

When the Madison team played in Janesville, the local lads started off with a rush and had a six point lead before the Wisconsin team awakened. It was a pretty battle thereafter.

Result of Friday's game with Madison will be received at the Gazette office at 10 o'clock Friday night.

With Meyers making practically all the points. Remember this, Coach Reynold's boys will watch out for that individual.

Since the last game between the schools, the Blues have strengthened their guarding wonderfully. This would give them a much better chance were it not for the fact that the Madison five is one of the few outfits in Southern Wisconsin that has been developing constantly.

The regular lineup of the Blues will make the trip. Black, Gridley, Crowley, Lane and Newman. The subs that will go along are Raubacher and Smith.

The team will remain over in Madison over Saturday night to witness the Badger—Chicago basketball game.

PERRING ATTENDS YEARLY CONFAB OF INDUSTRIAL TEAMS

Annual meeting of the Central Industrial Baseball league, composed of factory teams of the middle west, including the Samson Tractors and the Beloit Fairies, is in session in Chicago Friday. George Perring, manager of the Sammites, is in attendance.

Decision of officers, schedules, and possible plans for a twin circuit for Illinois and Wisconsin are among the matters to be taken up. The annual banquet will be held at the Morrison hotel at 5 o'clock.

Landis May Attend.
Federal Judge Landis, supreme dictator of organized ball has been invited to be the guest of honor. Election of officers will probably be made upon the recommendations of the nominating committee, of which Perring is chairman.

Whether two circuits will be established, one for Illinois and the other for Wisconsin, followed by the inter-circuit "world's series" at the end of the season, is a matter which may come up for final decision. The only handicap may be the present economic conditions, although it is felt in most industrial plants that matters are more of a necessity during depression than in good times.

New Samson Men.
Following this meeting announcements may be forthcoming as to tentative schedules for the coming year. From indications now, the season looks like a good one.

As to the Samson's, the team is practically set now. In addition to Hank Brackett, who arrived here last week, Perring's outfit will probably have another new outfielder and an additional twirler. Announcement to this effect may be made next week.
